

The Spectrum Low Volatility Fund Update

Fund Commentary

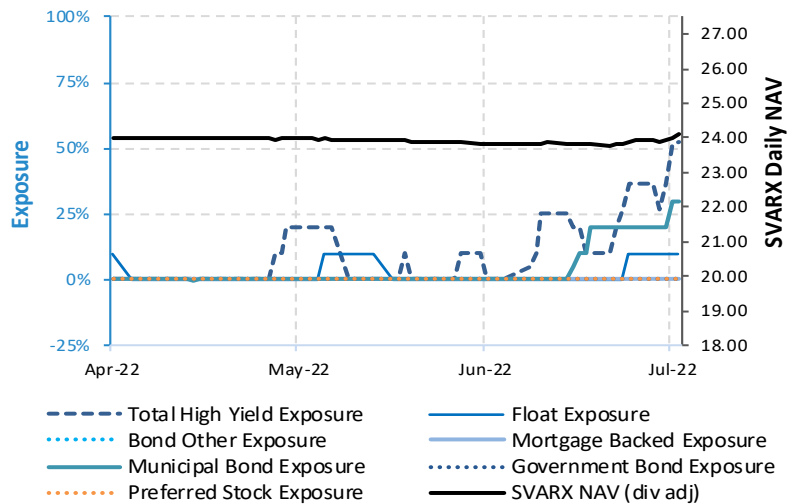

July opened strongly across asset classes, sustaining an upward bias throughout the month, a first for the year 2022 as risk reward imbalances posed opportunities. Allocations were rapidly increased within the fund, particularly focused within high yield and municipal areas. As the month-long rally persisted, additional positions were added judiciously. While it is still unknown as to whether or not the “bottom” has been seen, there are often tradable rallies in bear markets that can yield profits when monitored.

The chart above shows how the Fund performed against related sector indices for the past 12 months. The Fund focuses on domestic fixed income and credit markets, but can invest globally when prudent. The management team navigates the various bond classes and their specific characteristics. Various bond classes tend to move in different directions from each other, as some tend to perform better when there is economic growth while other classes perform better during times of heightened instability. The Fund’s holdings and exposure can shift on a daily basis allowing it to be nimble. Spectrum’s core philosophy is to achieve competitive returns without sacrificing the goal of risk management.
